DESIRE NEW CANDIDATES

Progressives Submit a List of Names They Will Unite With Republicans to Elect Senator

Concord, March 4.—The 36th ballot for United States senator by the legislative joint convention of 1913 resulted in no choice. Hollis the Democratic caucus nominee, lacked five votes of the number necessary, a relative position that he reached last four weeks ago on the 17th ballot. Compared with last Thursday's vote he lost the votes of Philbrick of Portsmouth and Richardson of Cheshire, and gained back that of Paunton of Manchester, all Republicans; Philbrick voted for John H. Bartlett, whose total ran up to 49 from 29 Thursday; Richardson voted for Henry H. Quincy, who had 5, four of which were from Cheshire county. There were twelve sets of pairs, and Adams of Haverhill was the only absentee unpaired.

No move was made to determine if Stevens of Londonderry whose term as congressman began at noon yesterday, was still entitled to vote as he was absent and paired with Buzzell of Barrington, who was also absent. The fifteen votes for Bass were all of those who formerly thus voted, but the only vote among them from Manchester, was that of Demers of Ward 6. Snow of Manchester was the only one of such number who voted for Britton, the remainder voting for Bartlett. The latter got 19 of his 49 votes from Manchester and four from Nashua. Hollis still had five Republican votes, but seven democrats still refrained from voting for him, such votes being cast, 5 for Woodbury and 2 for Carr.

Chairman Allison of the Progressive faction stated last night, that he had upon request furnished chairman Dean of the Republican caucus a list of six names, and one of whom that might be selected by the Republicans. The Progressives had agreed to support in conjunction with the Republicans if the latter so desired. Up to yesterday, such request though previously made had not been acceded to. The names submitted were Robert P. Bass, Judge James W. Remick, Judge Edgar Aldrich, Robert L. Manning, Allen Hollis and Speaker William J. Britton. The pledge of support from the Progressives embraced at least the fifteen men who voted for Bass yesterday.

A conference of the Republican members of the recent joint convention has been called at the Parish Memorial House at 10 o'clock this morning at which time it is assumed this proposition will come up for consideration. In view of the fact that a considerable number of those who formerly voted for Bass, and who had been members of the first Progressive caucus at which Britton was nominated for speaker, having been voting for Bartlett, there is some surprise that the latter's name was not included in the list, as well as that of George A. Carpenter, for whom it has been said some Democratic members stand ready to vote at any time he should be given any considerable support.

THIS WOMAN KNEW THE GAME

Boards Moving Train in Fine Manner Without Any Assistance.

There is one woman who knows how to get on a moving train and she just showed the railroad employees at the depot this morning how to do it. The 8.34 train for Concord was moving out of the depot when she appeared coming in the opposite direction toward the rear of the smoking car attached to the end of the train. Naturally everybody looks for the usual mess when a woman attempts this stunt, but they were richly fooled. Police Officer Tuohy did a marathon down the line, closely followed by John Carter, the train officer. She did not need their assistance. With the coolness of a brakeman she grabbed the hand lever, put her right foot out for the lower step and was quickly up on the platform with a cute little smile as John Carter exclaimed "She knows the game, she has been there before." She pushed her way through the clouds of smoke in the smoking car while the politicians bound for Concord stretched their necks to get a look at the ardent woman in blue who certainly can show a few men how to do the stunt.

General Manager Pollock and Other B. & M. Men Here Today.

A special train with General Manager B. R. Pollock of the Boston & Maine railroad and several other officials arrived here today en route over the Eastern route of the Portland division on a tour of inspection. This is the first trip of the new general manager over the Portland division since he assumed the office a month ago.

BOTH APPOINTMENTS

May Be Made at the Same Time in Concord.

The two appointments of police commissioners for this city are likely to be made together by the Governor and council. Today the name of John H. Dowd is strong among the democrats and that of Frank H. Leavitt with the republicans. Mr. Leavitt was a former candidate under the Bass administration but the council would not confirm his nomination which was made by Governor Bass.

ENGAGE IN STRIKE RIOTS

Boston Garment Workers Use Hats, Pins, Umbrellas and Fists on Strike Breakers

Boston, March 5.—In the worst riot that have accompanied the present strike of the garment workers, 17 girls and four men were arrested yesterday on charges of assault and battery. All are strikers. They were admitted to jail, and will be arraigned this morning.

Hatpins and umbrellas were used with telling effect in the rioting, which kept the police of the Langrange street and City Hall avenue stations busy. With the exception of the riots in East Boston recently, nothing of such a serious nature had been seen during the strike.

Many persons, including innocent spectators, were injured when girl strikers began wielding hatpins, umbrellas and fists. Traffic on Washington street and throughout the business district was impeded at times until the reserves from divisions 2 and 4 arrived and began driving away the crowds of thousands that had been drawn by the fighting.

To prevent the strikers performing "parade picketing" and their sympathizers from blocking up the main streets in the retail district all the patrolmen attached to town stations were placed on duty and worked from early morning until after 8 o'clock last night.

Despite the precautions of the police, strike-breakers were chased by the strikers through department stores and into subway and tunnel stations and even into surface cars. In a number of instances the strike-breakers were beaten or roughly handled before the police could rescue them and many of the assaults escaped.

The worst disorders occurred between 4.30 and 7 p.m. along Washington street, from Essex street to Bennett street and on streets leading off Washington street and Harrison avenue.

In Beach street about 5 o'clock, a score of girls attempted to leave the factory of L. P. Damberg. Over 3000 men and women were jammed together in the street waiting to receive the loyal workers, when a detail of 100 police-men, under Capt. James P. Conney and Sergeants King and Barry and Special Officer Anderson, arrived and ordered the crowds to disperse.

The crowd had been waiting an hour for this shop to close. Police details had time and again cleared the street, but the strikers continued parading up and down. Capt. Conney then ordered his men to clear the street and the strikers were driven into Washington street and Harrison avenue. Although the Damberg girls were escorted by the police when they left the shop, they found themselves in the midst of a howling mob on turning into Washington street.

The police hurried their charges to the tunnel station at Essex and Washington streets, and after sending them down the stairs formed a line across the entrance and fought off the strikers. The streets at this point were congested, and it was some time before extra police details hurried to the scene could scatter the crowds.

Johnny McGraw States that He Has a Fine Collection of Youngsters at the Training Camp

Marlin Springs, Tex., March 5.—Johnny McGraw declares that he has the most promising collection of young baseball players in the country at the training camp here. In talking about the new comers the other day, the Giants' manager said: "The youngsters here who are trying for a berth on the team are the most likely to have had in years. Such being the case it is a difficult matter for me to separate the chaff from the wheat. Cooper who is trying for an outfield berth will be one of the biggest stars in baseball in a year or two. All he needs is experience. He has everything else. Jacobson is another. Jim Thorpe, the Indian, is going to make a big league player. He has just one weak point—a failure to get ground balls—but he will overcome this. It will surely give the speed demons a run for their money this year on the paths. Milton Stock is another star who will make a name for himself. In the pitching line, Hanley and Schupp have done fairly well, but need more experience." McGraw stated that he is not sure whether he will make any changes in last year's lineup or not, but it is doubtful that he is contemplating a change in the outfield positions.

On this avenue on petition of M. H. Baker and ten others.

Twenty-fifth—To see if the town will vote to install electric lights on the Spruce Creek road from Hutchins' corner to the United Bank on petition of N. B. Emery and eighteen others.

Twenty-sixth—To see if the town will vote to install one electric light on Pine street near the railroad crossing on petition of S. A. Jackson and eight others.

Twenty-seventh—To see what sum of money the town will vote for street lights.

Twenty-eighth—To see what sum of money the town will vote for street lights.

Twenty-ninth—To see if the town will accept the report of the selectmen on petition of George P. Hayes and others to lay out a town way over Lewis Avenue to land of George P. Hayes and over the private way of Mrs. Baby Littlefield to the Rogers road, so called.

Thirtieth—To see what action the town will take on petition of J. E. Keene and others to lay out a town way from Portsmouth bridge, following the Atlantic Shore Line Highway to the Elliot road, near Gray Lodge.

Thirty-first—To see if the town will accept the list of jurors as revised by the municipal officials.

Thirty-second—To see if the town will vote a sum of money to be expended on Allen avenue.

Thirty-third—To see what sum of money the town will vote for text books for Free High School.

Thirty-fourth—To see if the town will instruct the treasurer and selectmen to employ counsel and bring suit if necessary, in order to make a settlement with property holders of property sold for taxes, at which the town holds tax deeds.

A CORRECTION

From Wednesday evening's Washington Star I quote the following:

"Holding that a portion at least of the services rendered by the late Samuel Hansey, former chief clerk of the surgeon general's office, to the late Joseph W. Parsh, for which the executor of Parsh's estate was awarded a verdict of $9,007.91, against the Parsh estate, falls under the inhibition of the statute, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, in an opinion by Chief Justice Shepard, today set aside the verdict and directed a new trial. The statute forbids a person in the government service and for a period of two years after quitting the service to furnish aid in the prosecution of a claim against the United States."

This statement is untrue. The court did not so hold as to a portion of Mr. Hansey's services. Justice to the memory of a faithful government official highly esteemed by all who knew him requires that this correction be made.

The Court of Appeals reversed the judgment of the court below on the ground that in their opinion the presiding Justice (Gould) fell into a serious error in his charge to the jury as to the burden of proof.

SHARK FIGHTS THREE HOURS

New Zealand Yachtsman Has Thrilling Encounter With Big Man-Enter

Mr. Aubrey Sara, an enthusiastic yachtsman recently had an exciting contest with a man-eating shark when on a fishing excursion off Kaituma Island, near Auckland Harbor, New Zealand, in a surf boat, manned by four rowers and equipped for a day's fishing. Mr. Sara suddenly heard a splashing noise, and glancing around, saw a porpoise pursued by a large shark—pursued and pursued headed direct for the boat.

Mr. Sara had come prepared with a rifle and an excellent harpoon about 12 feet long, attached to the latter being about 60 fathoms of tough wadding. But a few seconds elapsed before the porpoise reached the boat, when, as if asking advice for protection, it lay huddled so close to the boat that the occupants could have touched it. The shark made straight for the porpoise, the latter diving under the boat in the nick of time, followed closely by the greedy scavenger the shark coming to the surface but a few feet from the boat.

Now was Mr. Sara's opportunity, and with unerring aim he let fly the harpoon, the blade sinking into the monster's body. With a terrific swishing rush, the water being thrashed into foam in a fruitless endeavor to shake the barbed metal from his body, the maddened brute dived toward the bottom, the line playing out at a terrific rate. Soon, however, it rose to the surface again, and then a grand display of fish energy was witnessed while bullet after bullet entered the shark's soft flesh. Though riddled again, and again, the fierce creature kept on fighting, succumbing only after a struggle of three hours duration.—London Sphere.

PAROID ROOFINGFIRE UNDER COAL WHARF PROVES A STUBBORN AFFAIR

A fire of a somewhat mysterious nature, caused considerable trouble at the Consolidation Coal Company's plant on Market street Tuesday evening.

The fire was under the wharf of the big coal pocket and it was discovered shortly after nine o'clock by the watchman, and at that time was burning freely. The chemical auto was called and the crew hid a line of hose from a hydrant and checked the fire from coming up through the wharf and getting at the coal.

The fire was under the wharf, well in from the edge and hard to reach. Finally with the aid of a cellar nozzle and a boat the stream became effective and it was soon out. There was a barge lying at the dock, but at no time was it in danger.

How the fire started is a mystery. The damage is slight, a few planks and the stringers were more or less charred. It was nearly midnight before the chemical crew returned to the house.

Chief Engineer Woods was in charge of the fire and he had an able crew under him.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE SMUTTY NOSE TRAGEDY

It was forty years ago today, March 6, 1873, that the terrible tragedy of the Smutty Nose Island took place known as the Wagner murder. On that night Louis Wagner of this city, rowed to the Isles of Shoals, in a boat stolen here and murdered in a most brutal manner Anelhea and Karen Christensen, and their sister Mrs. John Hovent escaped from the murder by hiding among the rocks until Wagner left the island.

The dreadful details of the murder are too well known to republish. Wagner was captured in Boston, returned to this city, finally tried in Maine and executed in the Thomaston State Prison June 25, 1876.

LOST PICTURES OF THE GREAT MASTERS.

The periodic "discoveries" of lost pictures by the Great Masters while they provide a mild sensation among the mystified public usually leave the expert calm, cool and a little depressed. For in 15 cases out of 20, the discovery is of no account.

Occasionally it is a new picture, new in design, more often it is a copy, sometimes contemporary (in which case it possesses an interest of its own), but usually the creation of one of the last two centuries. The 18th century was the halcyon age for the picture faker and forger, who with comparative ease planted his wares as new discoveries. The art loving public, writes M. H. Spielmann in the London News and Leader, is cleverer now, but not much; undoubtedly it is more circumspect.

It has need to be if it is to decide whether the new found masterpiece is an original, a replica, a contemporary copy or a 17th or 18th century imitation. And the case becomes more difficult in such cases as Raphael in the 16th century and Rubens 100 years later, as the frequent custom of these intensely admired and always over-worked painters was to make designs to be painted by their pupils and assistants and often, but not always, retouched by themselves.

WANT A LABOR MAN APPOINTED.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Central Labor Union on Tuesday evening, it was voted to invite Mayor Badger to address the Union at the next meeting, and it was also voted to ask him to recommend some labor union man for the place on the Police Commission, made vacant by the resignation of Col. M. C. Foye.

TAFT IS PROUDEST OF THE JUDGES
HE HAS NAMED

Washington, March 3.—On this last day in the White House, the cheerful optimism that he has shown since his defeat for re-election was as strong as ever in President Taft as he chatted to a correspondent about his personal, political and official experiences as President of the United States. Much of what he said was of an intimate character. He looked fit and well, but spoke laughingly about his tendency to take on flesh and indicated a determination to overcome it. His complexion was clear and his eyes sparkled with interest or amusement as he recalled some happenings of his career.

"The thing that is mentioned last," said the President when he was asked what in his opinion stood out in boldest relief among his accomplishments, "is the thing in which I take the most pride—that is the constitution of the personnel of the United States supreme court under my administration. Six of the nine justices, including the chief justice, today bear my commission. And I have said to them: 'Darn you, if any of you die, I'll drown you.'"

Mr. Taft chuckled as he recalled this jocular remark intended to express the pride he took in his appointments to the supreme bench and his belief that the court was up to the highest standard of judicial learning and integrity. He went on:

"Then 45 per cent. of the federal judiciary now in office was appointed by me. That is the reason why I could not practice law as an advocate. While you and I and the average man would know that this circumstance would not affect any court in any degree before which I appeared, no matter how fairly a case might be decided the inclination of the man who lost would be, if I was on the side that won, to attribute his defeat to the circumstance that I had appointed the judge. And when you come to think of it, that in itself is an objection that must be considered."

What is needed in these days is that nothing should be done that would give the justification of even the appearance of a suspicion of the courts."

It was (so soon, the President said, to judge of the accomplishments of this Taft administration and for that reason there was little to say at this time.

"The President's voice rose as he said he had been asking himself how he could really feel when he went out of office.

"It is not the prospect of going out that worried me," he remarked, "but the morning after."

He had been holding office regularly since 1887, when he was appointed a state judge in Ohio. Then he served as collector-general of the United States and at 34 became a United States judge by appointment of President Benjamin Harrison.

Responsibility had not been a conscious strain to him, the President said, part of his life. It was only at times when he went away for a rest that the reaction came and made him realize that there had been an unconscious drain on his nervous energy.

President Taft's last day in the White House was one of his busiest. As a working day, it didn't last more than 10 hours, but it was crowded with events. The President shook hands with several hundred citizens and officials of the government; received scores of telegrams from friends all over the world; signed his name to pile after pile of pictures and letters and held three receptions. He quitted the room he has occupied for four years in the executive offices with a smile and without a backward glance, and with many a pleasant recollection of the days he has spent there. He met his old-time friends of the Washington diplomatic corps and the justices of the supreme court in the White House and last of all he gave the first formal welcome in that mansion to the President-elect and Mrs. Wilson.

William Jennings Bryan was one of the last distinguished visitors who saw the President in his office. Col. Bryan came unannounced late in the afternoon.

"Here's something I want to show you," said the President as he grasped the visitor by the arm and led him to the cabinet room.

"This," continued the President, "is the cabinet room."

Mr. Bryan sat down in the chair of the secretary of state, but he made no comment.

"I just dropped in to say my farewell," he told a newspaper man as he departed. "I have many republican friends as well as those in the democratic party."

WEALTHY SENATOR ASKS FOR PENSION.

Washington, March 4.—Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, one of the richest members of the upper house of Congress, has formally applied for a civil war veteran's pension of $16 a month. The application has had pension officials gasping.

"I expected to be criticised," said the senator, "but there were two excellent reasons for doing it."

"First, the pension will be given to charity. I shall not receive the benefit of a single penny."

"As for the second, I have had occasion to hunt for the war records of my revolutionary ancestors. If they are recorded anywhere I could not find them. So it occurred to me that my civil war record should be accessible to my children, and I thought it would be well preserved in the pension record."

Senator Warren served in the 49th Massachusetts volunteer.

MILLIONS IN GOLD HOARDED IN INDIA

Curious and interesting facts regarding India's passion for gold, and the strange uses to which the natives put the precious metal are contained in a report issued by the great bullion merchants, Messrs. Samuel Montague & Co. After mentioning the fact that last year India imported gold bars worth £47,135,000 as well as £18,342,000 in sovereigns, Mr. Montague states that as a contrast to the savings of France, which are utilized to promote trade, those of India are buried or hoarded. "At present nearly all the gold dug from the earth in South Africa is by a fresh digging operation deposited again beneath the soil in South Asia."

In India gold is put to uses unusual among nations of the West. Consumption of gold does not imply in India the actual swallowing of extremely thin gold leaves for medicinal purposes, though it is so taken in parts of India. A frequent form of piety is to regild the domes of religious buildings. Such operations can easily absorb 10,000 or more. Sovereigns with a shield on the obverse are in constant request. A rajah of roccoco tastes imported some thousands to form a center to each minute pane in the windows of his palace.

India occupies the position of a creditor nation on an immense scale, a fact which renders the size of its gold imports a matter of primary importance to the rest of the world. It seems assured that these imports last year were not only a fresh record, but will attain a total not less than 28 per cent of the world's output. This total it is stated is owing to the uninterrupted prosperity of the country following a succession of good monsoons.—The Blla.

Senator Warren Wants a Pension.

Hon. Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, who represents that State in part in the United States Senate, is out hot-foot for a place in the pension roll. Not because he needs the money—which he asserts will be given to charity—but because he considers the pension roll emphatically a roll of honor, and has an entirely laudable desire to appear thereon for the information and gratification of posterity. Inasmuch as Senator Warren served his country most creditably in the Forty-ninth regiment, Massachusetts volunteers, during the Civil war, and inasmuch as he is one of the squarest, and best, and most capable men in the United States Senate, his desire should be, and will be, gratified to the intense satisfaction of his old comrades in arms to whom the name of "Frank Warren" is still a synonym for a good soldier, upright business man and capable legislator. In Senator Warren the "old boys" of 1861-5 recognize, and always will recognize, a true and tried comrade and will rejoice when he wins the additional honorable distinction he seeks.

A Larger Supreme Bench.

It would not be at all surprising if one of the first propositions to be passed upon by the new Congress will be that looking toward an increase of the Supreme Court justices to eleven. This is in accordance, it is so understood, with the desire of President Wilson who is sponsor for a two-headed argument. The first head is that the Supreme Court is lamentably behind in its work and for this reason, if for no other, the additional judges are necessary. But the second head of the dual insistence is probably the stronger, and reveals the colored gentleman in the woodpile in all his pristine glory. It is no secret that in much of the important legislation to be enacted the democrats will align themselves with the so-called progressive republicans, and it is the determination to select additional judges of pronounced progressive proclivities so that a clear majority of the court will pass favorably upon democratic-progressive legislation. This is the scheme more or less elaborately outlined by Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, after an extended conference upon the subject with President Wilson and as the unbolty political combination above referred to is likely to be formed the country will have a chance to see how it will work.

Uncle Sam Small at Times.

Incidental to the closing of all the pension agencies of the country and the transfer of the clerical force of each to Washington, the Senate in the closing hours of the session sought to incorporate in the pension appropriation bill a provision for the application of a little more than eight thousand dollars, the sum remaining unexpended from the clerk hire appropriation of last year, toward the payment of the traveling and other necessary expenses of the clerks transferred to Washington from the New Hampshire and other agencies. But the House stonewalled against the Senate action, the Senate receded and the provision was eliminated from the bill. Compelling clerks to pay for their own transfer looks, at this distance, like pretty small potatoes.

Good for the Old Oregon.

On one of the brightest pages of United States naval history will be found the achievement of the battleship Oregon when, under command of Captain Charles E. Clark, one of the best men who ever trod the quarter deck, the staunch and speedy ship made her memorable run from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic, reaching Cuban waters in time to participate actively in the fight which destroyed Cervera's fleet. The historic ship has been honored by being the first vessel admitted to the new dry dock at the Puget Sound navy yard, the largest dock on the Pacific coast, costing $2,300,000. But the grand climax of honors to the Oregon will be the leadership of all vessels in the opening parade through the Panama canal, and she will be out of dry dock in time for that historic event.

There Should Be a Change.

The time seems to be ripe for a radical change in our foreign representative methods; for a return to the sound customs of earlier days respecting the appointment of our representatives abroad. In the days of Jefferson, Franklin and other representative Americans of the earliest days of this republic the possession of enormous wealth was not a passport to presidential favor when the nomination of men to represent us abroad was under consideration. While it is true that, generally, the persons named by Washington and his immediate successors were not poor men, even at that early period when frugal living was the rule and not the exception, at the same time they were far from possessing colossal fortunes. Today, however, the man desiring to represent us abroad must possess

Great Crowd Cheering Women Hikers at End of Journey In Washington and View of the "Army."

Photograph, 1913, by American Press Association.

When "General" Romaldo Jones and the thirteen footsore but dauntless women hikers of the suffrage army arrived in Washington from New York their entry was a triumph. About 5,000 persons crowded the block that the ill-fated band congregated in to receive its welcome. The women had been pushed by superior officers of the suffrage organization of the chance to present a message to President Wilson, but they had won their victory nevertheless in having walked every step of the 254 miles from Gotham in fourteen days. Above, at top, is a picture of the hikers in the crowd at the end of their journey; and below a view of the phalanx.

independent means—a huge fortune in fact—otherwise he would not be considered in the running. Many of the ablest men in this country today who would most signally honor us abroad as ambassadors and ministers are unable to accept because more would be required of them, in foreign residence, than they could afford. Now comes the well-founded rumor that a well-known New York lawyer, William C. Osborn, will be our next ambassador to Great Britain. And with this information is coupled the significant statement: "Mr. Osborn is reputed to have an independent fortune sufficient to justify his acceptance of the British mission." That's it, exactly, but how long must this state of things continue? What shall be the remedy? There must be one and it is the duty of Congress and the Executive to find and apply it.

Free Seeds Again on Deck.

When the Senate action killing the item in the agricultural appropriation bill providing for a continuance of free seed distribution reached the House that body, with surprising unanimity, refused to concur and the whole matter was submitted to conference. The result was that the House refused, point blank, to recede from its hostility to the free seed slaughter and the Senate, to bring matters to a head, acquiesced and free seeds will still be more or less judiciously employed as vote getters. It's astonishing what a hold this absurd custom has upon the average congressman, but, at bottom, the fault is with his get-something-for-nothing constituents.

COATY LATEST IN WOMEN'S APPAREL

New York, March 3.—The roof garden coat is the very latest coat for evening wear in New York. This is it will be when the coats are open once more.

The little roof garden coat is the most feminine of wraps. The dress-makers who had the first view of this American creation thought its designer, A. M. Brown, declared it to be as clever a coat as has been turned out on either side of the Atlantic in many a summer.

"I have called it the roof garden coat because that is essentially an American institution—the roof garden," said because the short little evening coat is supposed to be worn over light fingerings and silk gowns on a summer evening when one wants some light little thing over the gown and yet does not want to have it too warm or too heavy," said the maker.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MAN AMUSES MEMPHIS COURT

Wandered From the Granite State On Dock.

Memphis, Tenn., March 3.—A breeze from the green hills of New Hampshire blew into the city court yesterday afternoon when Tom Connolly, claiming to hail from way down east, was arraigned on a charge of larceny and vagrancy, and Billy Van, the actor-analyst, who was visiting the court, was appointed by Judge W. J. Byron, from the bench, to defend him against the charges.

Patrolman Davis and Yarnwood made the arrest down in the Second Ward, where the hobo infest. The defendant was a rather tough looking citizen, but so long as he came from New Hampshire, his attorney did not care, but declared that his heart was always warm for the people of his native state.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

Think-It-Over Posters Tell Hubbies What the Money Spent for Rum, Might Purchase—A Novel Anti-Intemperance Campaign—Second Florence Nightingale Celebrates Wedding Anniversary in Historic Hall of Flags—Ninety-Two Year Old Bay State Suffragist in Inauguration Crush—A Large Gift for Musical Education.

Boston, March 5.—Think-It-Over posters represent a novel method of spreading anti-liquor preachments that has been devised by a group of Back Bay men and women and will soon be put into operation. These will be placed at conspicuous points in the main thoroughfares of the city warning against alcoholic abuses and emphasizing the economic side of the question. An example of the form of poster is given: Ten cents a day spent for liquor would buy in a year, 5 barrels of flour, or 120 pounds of butter, or 130 dozens of eggs, or 730 pounds of sugar. Another poster enumerates the fact that liquor causes one-fifth of our social evil. The posters will doubtless make many people "think it over."

An event of much interest to all New England took place in the State House on Beacon Hill when the famous old Hall of Flags was given over to the purpose of honoring the fiftieth wedding anniversary of the "second Florence Nightingale" and a noted veteran of the Civil war. Mr. and Mrs. John A. Fowle, the recipients of this unique honor, were married fifty years ago in the House of Representatives at Washington, by the chaplain of the House, after a special act of Congress had permitted the use of the House for this purpose. Mrs. Fowle was a beautiful singer and a noted army nurse, and her husband was also a singer and prominent in Washington. Both were friends of Lincoln, and the great number of soldiers to whom Mrs. Fowle had ministered previous to her marriage demanded that they be allowed to attend the ceremony. The notable incident attendant at this ceremony was when the bride in her orange blossoms and wedding veil turned at the request of the audience crowding the House of Representatives and sang "The Star Spangled Banner." The golden wedding was fittingly honored by the presence in line of Governor Foss and other notables. Mr. and Mrs. Fowle have devoted themselves to patriotic work, and Mr. Fowle has long been identified with the Dorchester Historical Society's efforts in preserving the Old Blake House and other noted landmarks.

Boston suffragists were prominent among the events of the inauguration. They, too, suffered from the stings and arrows of outrageous treatment at the hands of the Washington mob. A large contingent of Massachusetts women took part in the pageant. Miss Margaret Foley, Mrs. Mary Hutchison Page and Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald are leading spirits in the Boston group, and Miss Foley was called upon to begin speechmaking immediately upon her arrival at the capital several days previous to the inauguration. She was among the speakers at the great mass meeting held at the Columbia theatre. One member of the suffrage body which left Boston for the capital was Mrs. Judith Smith of East Boston, 93 years of age, and among the most enthusiastic of suffrage workers in the Bay State. Her activities extend back to the early days of Julia Ward Howe and Lucy Stone, and she feels that the cause is worthy the effort necessary at her age to take part in the procession.

Boston's pre-eminence as a centre of musical education will be still further enhanced by a gift of $100,000 which has just been received by the New England Conservatory of Music from a donor who prefers for the present to be anonymous. This gift is an important step toward creating an endowment fund for the oldest and largest American music school. Director George W. Chadwick says that the main purpose of the gift is to establish scholarships and to reduce the debt.

"This is by far the largest contribution made to the New England Conservatory of Music," he states, "since Mr. Eben Jordan's gift of the adjacent lot of land on which the Conservatory is eventually to be extended. With the exception of a few scholarships given by private individuals the New England Conservatory has no endowment. The debt incurred for the new building has been somewhat reduced, but a large amount still remains to be paid." It is recalled that a quest for free scholarships was started some time ago at the Conservatory. This has resulted thus far in the creation of several scholarships. Meantime the proposal to enlarge the present Conservatory building is said by Mr. Chadwick to be one which may receive impetus from the present gift. Lack of a sufficient number of teaching rooms and of an assembly room has for some time been felt by the management. The need of more dormitories is another of the Conservatory's problems which the anonymous generosity may help to solve. The growth of the New England Conservatory which before long must make expansion inevitable has been steady and progressive since the present management took control. Ten years ago there were about 1,800 students. The registration last year exceeded 3,000, making the problem of accommodation a serious one.

reserved some of his most attractive offerings for the final weeks.

Following the remarkable success which "The Jewels of the Madonna," has attained, Mr. Russell will produce another of the Wolf-Ferrari operas, on Friday evening next. This time it will be "The Secret of Suzanne," a one act composition so replete with grace and melody that it has been likened to the music of Mozart, and higher praise there could not be. Munich saw the first production on Nov. 4, 1909 and in the spring of 1911 it was given in Philadelphia for the first time in this country. Since then it has more than attained its original popularity, and during this season it has found still another clientele.

That of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

There are but three characters called for in the little comedy, "Count

Gil, the Countess Suzanne, his young and pretty wife, and their dumb servant, Sante. In the Boston production

the parts will fall to Antonio

Scotti, Alice Nielson and Leo De-vaux. Mr. Scotti sings the role at the Metropolitan, and Miss Nielson's wholly captivating performance of

"Don Giovanni" gives assurance that she will sing the Mozartian airs of Suzanne in charming fashion.

At its premiere "The Secret of Suzanne" will follow Louis Aubert's first opera "La Frelle Blanche," in which

Mmes. Melles, Amaden, Fisher, Swart,

Leveon and DeCourcy and M. Deer, Riddex, Cilla and several others create Red Riding Hood, Hop O' My

Thumb, The Sleeping Princess, Prince

Charming, the dreadful Ogre and many of the figures taken from fairy lore. The music of Aubert is fresh and of an airy texture, which suits it to the libretto. Mr.

Caplet will conduct both operas.

The second novelty of the week will

to be heard for the first time this year on Wednesday evening. Its initial presentation made a brilliant event of the opening performance last season, and the same cast will reappear in most in its entirety. Giovanni Zen-ello and Mme. Gay will again have the title parts. Jean Riddex will be

High Priest, Joe Mardones will be

Abimelech and Edward Lankin the Old Hebrew. Scarcely the production will be remembered as one of the most elaborate ever shown in Boston.

On Monday night the last performance of "Aida" will take place, with

Mmes. Melles and Gay and Mme. Zena-ello, Rosal and Mardones in the principal parts. Mr. Moranzoni will direct.

For the Saturday matinee Faust

Marguerite, Riccardo Martin, as

Faust and Andrea de Segura as Mephistopheles. With Jesse Swartz

Stebel, Jean Riddex as Valentin, Barnard Olshansky as Wagner and Miss Leveon as Marthe, the cast will be a very strong one. The musical director will be Mr. Strony.

On Saturday evening this brilliant week will be brought to a close by the only appearance in Boston this season of Mme. Lina Cavalieri, the famous Italian soprano, in the title role in "Carmen." It will be the last opportunity to hear the favorite Bizet opera, and associated with Mme. Cavalieri as Don Jose will be Lucien

Muratore, the foremost Frenchman of the day. Bernice Fisher will be the Micaela, Jose Mardones the Escamillo and Mlle. Cecil Tryan will do

NEW CASTLE

The winter rhymes, sneeze and freeze, snow and blow, have fitted the weather for the past six weeks and the end is not yet seemingly in sight, for the air has a thin, still cold that induces more snow. The leaden clouds look bronzed and smooth across the sky and over the far stretching landscape the snow lays its whiteness dead and unsparking. Those in the island town who thought we weren't going to have any winter must feel greatly relieved.

DEATH CLAIMS

JUDGE MITCHELL

Justice of Superior Court Succumbs to Pneumonia at His Home in Concord.

Concord, March 4.—No more grievous shock from the death of a citizen could have come than that which was sustained as the report passed through the city soon after 5 o'clock this afternoon that John M. Mitchell, a justice of the supreme court, was dead. It had not been known by his most intimate friends that he was dangerously ill and the news seemed incredible.

Just a week ago today, he was on the bench in the Hillsborough county court. He was then troubled with what was regarded as a cold and on the following day, regarding it imprudent to expose himself, remained at home, requesting Judge Chamberlin to continue the proceedings there. He had an assignment in the Hillsborough county court at Laconia yesterday, but telephoned Clerk Thompson in the forenoon that he did not feel able to go up there and fill the engagement, characteristically expressing his regret at any disappointment that might come to the attorneys at their inability to go forward with the business of the court on that account. The cause of death was pneumonia. He died at 5:15 o'clock.

As the news of his death spread, the shock was followed by words of regret and of high tribute to his worth as a citizen from persons in every rank in life, for he was most widely known. A hearing was being held by the House committee on judiciary on a bill to increase the salary of the court justices when the report of his death reached the committee room, and it was at once discontinued. Through the capital and at the hotel where were to be found state officials, legislators and citizens of prominence, there was no other topic discussed than the sudden death of this distinguished son of the state and his praiseworthy career. Mr. Mitchell had sustained the loss of his wife, who was Julia C. Longman of St. Johnsbury, Vt., and to whom he was married in 1874, by death only a few weeks ago, and of his brother, William H. Mitchell of Littleton, but a few months earlier.

He is survived by two daughters, Agnes and Marion, and by three sisters, Kate of this city, Mrs. M. J. Donovan of Somerville, Mass., and Abbie of Newport, Vt.

The funeral service will take place from St. John's church at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning.

John M. Mitchell was born at Plymouth, July 6, 1849, the oldest child of John and Honora (Doherty) Mitchell, who came to this country from Ireland the year previous to his birth. He had resided in Concord since June, 1881. When John M. was born his father was employed in the work of building the Boston, Concord and Montreal railroad, but soon after he engaged in farming, which continued his vocation for the remainder of his life. Mr. Mitchell's boyhood days were spent upon a Vermont farm, much of the time in Salem, now a part of Derby. He attended the district school, and at the age of 15 entered Derby academy. His course there was interrupted now and then for the purpose of teaching, his first term being at Holland when 16 years of age. He taught for six consecutive winters, and at the age of 19 became superintendent of schools of the town of Salem for two years.

He began the study of law with Edwards & Dickerman at Derby, but in 1879 entered the office of Harry and George A. Bingham of Littleton. He was admitted to the bar in 1872, and was at once taken into partnership with Harry Bingham, which continued until the death of the latter in 1900. In 1881 a branch office was opened at Concord, and Mr. Mitchell came here to reside.

In Concord he served in the legislature at the session of 1893, and in the constitutional conventions of 1902 and 1912 from ward 4, and he was a steadfast member of the democratic party. At the last convention he was the chairman of the standing committee on judicial department. He was also minority party member of the railroad commission from 1888 to 1891, when he resigned.

He was for many years a member of the Concord board of education, serving as the chairman, but declining further re-nomination. He was for many years a trustee of the New Hampshire state hospital, and a trustee of the Margaret Pillsbury hospital of Concord. In a professional way he had been most prominent as a "corporation lawyer," having been identified with the momentous railroad litigation that has been in the state courts for much of the time for a third of a century.

Up served many years as a member of the democratic state committee; was chairman of the state convention of 1888. He was the democratic nominee for the United States senate in 1902, and a delegate to the national convention in 1904.

He was appointed a judge of the superior court Sept. 7, 1910, by Gov. Henry H. Quincy, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles F. Stone of Laconia, and since that time had been most active in the work of the position.

Concord has had no more industrious or public spirited citizen than John M. Mitchell. Pressed with professional work, he had always taken the time to assist earnestly and effectively in every current beneficent or progressive civic movement. He was the first president of the state board of charities and correction. His business judgment ranked with his high professional standing. He is president of the trustees of the Loan and Trust Savings bank and a director of the State Capital National Bank.

He had been the legal adviser of the Roman Catholic Bishop of Manchester since the creation of the diocese in 1883, and for some time previous of the bishop of Portland as to civil matters in this state.

This new turn in affairs will tend to give added interest to the situation.

It displays an inclination to try out some new names in an effort to terminate an unprecedentedly long contest in the political history of this state, following the rule of long political contests everywhere that they can be terminated only with some man not previously well supported. It has been demonstrated beyond question that neither Mr. Hollis nor Mr. Pearson is the free choice of a majority of the convention. For 36 ballots an opportunity has been given such majority to come to Mr. Hollis and it has been steadfastly refused for a period covering seven full weeks and more. In that time every possible influence both state and national, that could be invoked for Mr. Hollis's aid has been resorted to. For 29 ballots Mr. Pearson has been the Republican conference choice, and for a period covering six full weeks a majority of the members has refused to improve the opportunity afforded to give him the election. Whether there will be time considering the lateness of the hour at which the Republican conference convention is to be held tomorrow relative to the hour that the branches assemble for their morning session to go fully over the situation and designate upon a different conference choice that shall be the deliberate and wise choice is regarded as doubtful by some and it may be an adjournment will be considered necessary before a determination is reached to permit of more time for consideration of a most important subject. It is possible that Democrats, sentimentals should be involved.

THE CRADLE SNATCHER

When a new play meets with the instant and unanimous approval of Boston's cold and conservative critics it ought to be proof of sufficient interest to the theatregoing public to sit up and take notice. When Mr. Robert Lorraine made his reappearance at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, after a long absence, in "The Cradle Snatcher," a new comedy by Roi Cooper Megrue, he scored the biggest hit of his career. In fact one can truthfully say, he surpassed his former tremendous success of John Tanner in Bernard Shaw's "Man and Superman." As a matter of fact Mr. Lorraine is seen in a role not dissimilar to that which he so brilliantly portrayed in Shaw's comedy. It offers him unlimited opportunities for his remarkable versatility. "The Cradle Snatcher" is founded from a short story by Gouverneur Morris and tells of the amazing experience of a young barrister, who, to fulfill the requirements of a will has to find a suitable girl and marry her all within less than two weeks.

One need go no further to imagine the numerous phases of comic relief that may arise from this somewhat embarrassing situation. For instance, in quote the Boston Journal "The proof of the comedy is the laughing, and a very large and very appreciative audience laughed all through the first act. But it had to laugh all the harder and faster in the second act, which is capital comedy from start to finish, in word and action." The Boston Globe said: "It is one of the very rare cases concerning courtship that is absolutely free from indecent lines and suggestive situations. It is a play that may be cordially recommended to the young person. In other words if you would enjoy a delightful evening, with a laugh every other second, don't fail to see this play. It is a worthy successor to 'Disraeli.'" Send in your order for seats now. Make your check or money order payable to Fred E. Wright, Plymouth Theatre, Boston. Mr. Lorraine's engagement closes on Saturday, March 22.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS

A hearing before the Appropriation Committee of the legislature which is of interest here, will be held on Wednesday evening at seven o'clock at Concord. It will be on the cross state trunk line road, from Keene to Nashua, Manchester and Portsmouth.

The local Board of Trade and Merchants Exchange have been doing some very active work on this proposition, in conjunction with the Manchester, Nashua and Keene Board of Trade. The proposition is one that appeals to a great many people as it would make it possible to get from the coast across the state, in some of the outdoor exercises of administering what of a direct line. At the present times the road to Manchester is very poor and to Nashua worse, so that the ordinary owner of an automobile goes down into Massachusetts and then by a round-about way to Nashua. Keene is almost impossible by auto.

Of all the trunk roads mentioned at this session, this is the most favored, and it is very probable that it will be passed.

How Kansas Got Its Name.

The late Colonel Inman always insisted that Kansas got its name through mistake of a proofreader. The early Kansas Indians were Kew, a diminutive of Kaumas. In revising the works of a missionary the proofreader mistook the "n" for an inverted "u" and changed it to "u." Since then it has been Kansas.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS AFTER A LONG SESSION

Sundry Civil Bill Vetoes By President Taft--Clark and Cannon in Last Debate.

Washington, March 4.—The House, after re-passing the Sundry Civil Service Bill over President Taft's veto this morning, adjourned sine die at 12:04. The Senate was then still in session.

Just before the House adjourned, Speaker Clark called ex-Speaker Cannon to the chair, and an affecting scene of farewell took place. Speaker Clark told the House that he visited no confidence in saying:

"I could have been sworn in as Vice President of the United States if I had wanted to, but I preferred to stay with you."

Speaker Clark and Mr. Cannon received an ovation upon the adjournment of the House.

An attempt to re-pass the Sundry Civil Bill over President Taft's veto was abandoned in the Senate after it had been accomplished in the House.

In All-Night Session.

Congress, upon reassembling this morning for its last day, was confronted with only two outstanding bills, the General Deficiency and the Indian Appropriation bills, which had been passed in the House. In both houses, had been agreed upon in conference and put through both houses.

The Deficiency Bill was taken up in conference. The Indian bill was marked for time in the Senate when the two houses still in the session of the legislative day of Saturday, recessed from shortly after 1 this morning until 9:30 a. m. following a continuous all-day session.

The night session lacked the spectacular features of some of its predecessors in the history of a Congress, but verbal banquets thrown generously from the Democratic and Republican sides and personalities served to enliven the proceedings. Representative Hollis of Alabama had been invited to deliver a complimentary song. "Hollis of Connecticut" has been expected to spring an original poem on the Quack, Quack of the Lame Ducks, but the festival of song and humor was side-tracked.

Speaker Clark had said on the rostrum almost 20 hours continuously. Republican Leader Mann and Democratic Leader Underwood remained at their posts. Chairman Fitzgerald of the Appropriations Committee was continuously in conference over the supply bills or piloting them through the House. Up in the gallery there was a remnant of the crowd that had surged in during most of the night.

Personal Issues Raised. Requests to extend remarks in the Congressional Record, a time-honored privilege, became a frequent fact at 3 a. m. Representative Aldrich of New York asked unanimous consent of the House to extend his remarks "on all subjects."

There were several personal issues raised during the early hours today. Representative Smith made an urgent plea for a $200,000 appropriation for the Knoxville Exposition, and exclaimed ed that he had to get the appropriation of his constituents would "refuse" him.

Ex-Speaker Cannon denounced the Sundry Civil bill, and declared the President should not approve it, because of the conference acceptance of the provision exempting labor unions from the applicability of the $300,000 of funds appropriated to enforce the anti-trust laws. Mr. Cannon contended that was class legislation.

To avoid a filibuster in the Senate by the Nevada Senators, who early today gave notice of taking the legislative appropriation bill to death, the Senate and House conferees agreed to continue the assay offices for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914. Salaries at the offices were reduced. The conference report was adopted by the Senate.

The Senate finally agreed to the conference report on the General Deficiency bill, thus disposing of that measure. The Indian Appropriation bill then remained the only measure to be disposed of, but Senator Fall declined to allow the Senate to accept the conference report.

Speaker Clark appointed a committee, consisting of Representatives Underwood of Alabama, Sparkman of Florida and McCall of Massachusetts to notify the President that the House was ready to adjourn.

SUNDY CIVIL BILL VETOED

Taft Disapproves of the Measure—Prohibited Use of Funds to Prosecute Labor Unions.

Washington, March 4.—President Taft today vetoed the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, carrying $12,000,000 because of its provision which prohibited the Department of Justice from using its anti-trust appropriation in prosecution of labor unions and farmers' organizations.

The Sundry Civil bill, after being re-passed in the House, was rushed over to the Senate and reached there at 11:55 a. m. A sergeant-at-arms grasped the long pole and turned the hands of the clock back to 11:25 a. m. Senator Fall, however, was still filibustering on the Indian Appropriation bill.

Among the first measures President Taft signed were the Rivers and Harbors, Public Buildings, Agricultural and General Deficiency bills.

The House at once re-passed the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill over President Taft's veto by a vote of 279 to 50. Senate leaders did not believe an attempt would be made to re-pass the bill in the upper body.

The bill was finally taken up by the Senate for a vote. President Taft's veto had characterized it as "class legislation of the most vicious sort." After a short filibuster by Senator Poinsett it appeared that the attempt to re-pass the bill in the Senate had been abandoned.

LOAN ISSUE FOR CHINA SETTLED

Peking, China, March 3.—It is stated here that the Chinese International loan of $125,000,000 is to be issued approximately as follows: Great Britain $40,000,000; France, $35,000,000; Germany, $20,000,000; the United States, $12,500,000; Belgium, $7,500,000; the latter sum being a portion of Russia's share. The balance of the Russian allotment and the Japanese allotment are included in the British and French totals.

Germany has withdrawn her objection to the appointment of a British adviser to the administration of the salt tax in China and the six-power loan is now expected to go through without any further hitch.

The United States and Japan have waived their claims to the appointment of their nationals among the four foreign advisers China is obliged to nominate under the loan agreement.

WOODROW WILSON TAKES OATH OF OFFICE

Washington, March 4.—Woodrow Wilson was today inaugurated President of the United States, with Thomas B. Marshall as vice president, amid scenes of stirring animation and with impressive ceremonies, marked in the main by simplicity, and yet retaining that degree of dignity, with some of the pomp and spectacular display which attaches to the induction of a new chief executive of the nation. The elaborate ceremonies of the day followed a fixed program covering practically five hours. It began in the morning with the drive of the President-elect, President-elect and Vice President-elect from the White House to the Capitol.

The inauguration of Vice President Marshall took place shortly after noon with the assembling of the new Senate and the swearing in of new senators. Following this, at about one o'clock the chief ceremony of the day, the inauguration of President Wilson, occurred at the east front of the Capitol. Then came the return of the Presidential party to the White House and the review of the inaugural parade lining well along into the afternoon.

Joined by Committee. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Marshall as the hour approached for opening the ceremonies, were joined by the inaugural committee of Congress, Senators Brandegee and Overman and Representatives Rucker, Garrett and McSherry. To this committee was assigned the first function of importance in the day's proceedings, that of conducting the new President and Vice President to the White House for formal greetings with President Taft, followed by the drive of the presidential party to the Capitol.

Meantime the escort for the presidential party was assembling. Foremost was the Black Troop from Mr. Wilson's own state. With them, from Mr. Marshall's state, rode the Black Horse troop of Indiana. One thousand Princeton men with touches of their college colors, clad with the mounted escort in number and activity. Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson occupied earriages with members of the inaugural committee. At the Capitol the Committee of Arrangements was ready to conduct Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson to the marble chamber known as the President's room, just off the lobby leading to the Senate chamber. The arrival of the presidential party was timed to bring it to the Capitol a full hour before the opening of the actual inauguration ceremony at noon.

Supreme Court Enters. First came the Supreme Court, then the House and other bodies at specified intervals, from 11:30 to noon, leading up to the actual ceremonies. When the Supreme Court was announced, Chief Justice White leading the procession entered the Senate Chamber, followed by the associate justices. The representatives of foreign nations came next, headed by Ambassador Jusserand of France, dean of the diplomatic corps in the absence of the venerable Baron Hengelmueller, the ambassador of Austria, who is absent from his post on leave and is not to return. Meanwhile the House of Representatives formed in double line down the long corridor toward the down corridor toward the House wing of the Capitol, and accompanied by the members-elect soon to take places in the next Congress, marched slowly to the Senate door, and, headed by Speaker Clark, for whom a seat had been placed on the rostrum at the left of Senator Gallinger, as President pro tempore of the Senate, found seats reserved on the west side of the chamber, the east being held for senators and others. Other places reserved in the chamber were for Admiral Dewey and his aide, Major General Leonard Wood, Chief of Staff of the Army and his aide, and officers of the army and navy, who by name have received the thanks of Congress. Among these were Rear Admiral Peary. When this part of the program was carried out the next move was to escort the President, President-elect and Vice President-elect to the chamber. With the entrance of President Taft and President-elect Wilson at the main door of the Senate, escorted by the Committee on Arrangements, and the entrance of Mr. Marshall and Senator Gallinger, also escorted by the same committee, the stage was set for the inauguration of the new Vice President.

"The hardest thing American teachers in the Philippines have to contend with," says Mr. Muernman, "is the American spirit of haste and business. The American is in too much haste. He wants to get everything done at once. He tries to overturn in a few weeks the traditions of centuries. And yet, coming into a country where the ideal tends to be that of Manana—never to do today what can be done tomorrow—he has really made astonishing headway in transforming the Philippines into a country of today, where things move with something like American hurry. The old folks shake their heads and sigh for the good old times, but the young people, boys and girls alike, are glad to take advantage of the more efficient methods. They play American games and accept the educational opportunities offered them with equal adaptability, and it is through them that the new Philippine civilization is making its way irresistibly."

Agulnaldo with his hemp weaving and agriculture may be a less heroic figure than the wily general who for so long eluded the American armies. Just as clean streets and city high schools somehow make less noise in the concert of the powers than the roar of guns in Manila Bay; but when the real history of humanity is written, it can scarcely leave untold the story of the unselfish efforts of Americans to carry the light of education to the Philippines.

At this point the inaugural ceremonies passed from the stage of quiet and solemnity of the Senate Chamber to one full of color and animation as the Philippines.

For flaky pie crust use

Cottolene

Lard soaked pies have caused a world of indigestion, and pies therefore have been wonderfully abused, and in some cases taboos.

When properly made with Cottolene and eaten at suitable times, pies are no more indigestible for a normal person than are many other foods which so far have escaped this criticism.

Cottolene makes light and delicate crust—rich, but not greasy—wholesome, digestible, nutritious.

There is no hog fat in Cottolene. It is a vegetable product—made from purest and choicest cotton oil. It is a product of Nature, and much more wholesome than either butter or lard.

Cottolene is an economical fat. Use one-third less than either lard or butter, and obtain better results.

HEARING ON HALL OF HEROES LIVELY

Concord, March 4.—The hearing on the bill abolishing the hall of heroes was continued before the judiciary committee this morning, and was largely attended by members of the commission, veterans and others.

Attorney G. P. Dudley of Concord appeared for Mr. Buffum, chairman of the commission, and contended that the bill was unconstitutional. He contended that the bill was unconstitutional because it was a bill of attainder, and that it was a bill of ex post facto law.

Chairman Cutler wanted to know why the appropriation for Mr. Buffum's expenses was nearly used up and practically nothing was accomplished.

Mr. Dudley replied that the work of the commission had been made more difficult by the fact that the bill was not passed until after the hearing had begun.

Mr. Buffum in his own behalf said that the statement had been made that the Grand Army, the veterans in general, and in fact, nobody wanted the hall of heroes continued. He contended that this was not true. He said the idea of the hall of heroes had started thirty years ago, when it was decided that something should be done towards preserving the pictures of the common soldiers as well as those of the officers, and this idea had been carried out in other states as well as here.

Chairman Cutler asked if the bill of opposition in the house was not due to the fact that the Grand Army was in favor of the bill and if their attitude had not changed since that time. Mr. Buffum said it had not as a whole, but that some of the Grand Army men were not in favor of continuing the hall of heroes.

Chairman Cutler said that the committee wanted to know how far the work had progressed. Mr. Buffum's reply was that he had sent out 3500 requests. Mr. Cutler wanted to know how many pictures had been received and Mr. Buffum replied several hundred. Mr. Cutler replied that this was rather indefinite. Mr. Buffum, however, made no definite statement of the number.

Representative Van Yliet said that the committee wanted to know what the commission had done and what it expected to do. It was voted that Mr. Buffum present an itemized account of his expenses and of the work so far as it had progressed at a meeting which will be held after adjournment this afternoon.

The Manchester delegation will hold a conference tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

President Sawyer has appointed as the members of the investigating committee to investigate the rumors of bribery and other improper practices, Senator James O. Gerry of Madison, John W. Prentiss of Walpole and James G. Wallace of Canaan.

FOR A SUFFRAGAN BISHOP IN MASSACHUSETTS

Bishop Lawrence has given notice that he will request the next diocesan convention to elect a suffragan bishop for this diocese.

A bishop in asking for a coadjutor must permanently surrender large parts of his jurisdiction and authority, and previously assign all that to the coadjutor.

Always at your service

This is all well where the bishop is an aged and feeble man and expects soon to lay down all the duties of his office. But these are not the conditions in Massachusetts. We have a bishop in full vigor and strength of mind and body, and the diocese is not thinking of turning over its work and Episcopal authority in large part to its next bishop. It will certainly not other thought than that Bishop Lawrence shall remain its directing head and have undivided authority in all its affairs for many years to come. It would be impossible for any one today to divide the Episcopal duties of this diocese in a way that could wisely stand during the lifetime of Bishop Lawrence, with the changing conditions in population and in the movements and habits of the people. But each division would have to be made in advance if a coadjutor were elected, and both bishops would then be committed to certain lines of policy which experience might prove to be a mistake. But a suffragan avoids all that and fast alignment. With a suffragan the work is elastic, and the two bishops can put themselves in at any point where each is needed.—Church Militant.

PREACHER HAS EYE ON END OF WORLD

Says Climax Will Shortly Follow Battle of Armageddon in 1933.

The Jews will return to Jerusalem in 1915, and the Battle of Armageddon will be fought in 1933, according to the Rev. S. Samuel Clements, superintendent of the Wesleyan Methodist Society, who is delivering a course of lectures in the First Wesleyan Church of Philadelphia. Fifty-second and Thompson streets, on "The Second Coming of Christ." Mr. Clements declares that the New Testament has foretold these events, and that by a careful study of the Scriptures and by comparing the prophecies with happenings of the past specific time can be set for these great events.

"The signs of the times plainly show that the fulfillment of all prophecy is now at hand. St. Paul declared that the falling off from the Christian faith would be the forerunner of the final destruction of the world. People nowadays are not going to church. This is a literal fulfillment of the prophecy.

"The world is getting worse every day. The extreme disobedience of children to their parents is another sign that the world is getting worse instead of better. The time is not far off when the final consummation of all things will be at hand. The Jew will return to Jerusalem in 1915, in preparation for the second and literal return of Christ to the world. The present Balkan war is simply another fulfillment of Biblical prophecy and paving the way for the second coming of Christ.

"The decline of the Papacy will occur in 1923, and the Battle of Armageddon will be fought in 1933. The end of the world will soon follow."—Philadelphia Record.

BASS IN FIRST DIVISION

In Tournament at Pinehurst 222 Return Cards—Travis Has Lowest.

Pinehurst, March 4.—From a field of 225 entrants, 222 players returned cards in yesterday's first round of the thirty-six hole qualification round of the ninth annual spring golf tournament. Half the field played on the No. 2 course and the other half on No. 3, leaving still a third eighteen-hole course for non-contestants.

Seventy-six for Walter J. Travis, who played the No. 3 course, and 73 for B. Warren Cookman, who played on No. 2, were low scores. The bogey on each course is 80, but it is difficult to judge just what the actual difference is until the players make the second round on the opposite course to morrow.

The first division will include likely William C. Fowkes, Jr., of Oakmount and his father, Henry C. Fowkes, Parker W. Whittemore of the Country Club, and C. W. Bax of Portsmouth.

PREPARING FOR TRIAL RUN.

To be cleaned and painted under water in preparation for her acceptance trials by the government officials.

the big naval coiler Jason, one of the largest vessels of her class ever built at the works of the Maryland Steel Company, at Sparrows Point, Md., is in the dry dock at the Skinner shipyard at Baltimore. The steel hull of the big craft will be cleaned and polished until it is smooth as glass, and this week she will make a trial run over the government course in Chesapeake bay. When she meets the speed requirements of her contract, she will then demonstrate her ability to load and unload a full cargo of about 12,000 tons of fuel in a given time. The Jason is a sister ship of the Neptune, also built at Sparrows Point, which was accepted by the naval authorities about a year ago.

ITALY FORTIFIES SIMPLON TUNNEL

Geneva, Switzerland, March 3.—The Italian government has joined itself to the rest of the European continental powers in making military preparations. It has increased garrisons along the Swiss frontier, and military engineers are engaged in building new forts commanding the passes from the mouth of the Simplon tunnel towards the east.

Chambers for mines have been excavated at the Italian entrance to the great Simplon tunnel and these have been fitted with secret electrical connections underground so that by pressing a button 20 miles away the tunnel can be shattered.

WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN

Are Washington and Lincoln out of date? Have they no messages for these times? Are we mistaken in looking to their performances for aspirations and suggestions in the work we now have in hand?

There are men before the public whose deliverances lead to these questions. Some of them spoke on the 32nd ultimo, and others on the 22nd. The tributes to both the father and the preserver of the country were warm, but somehow qualified.

It was admitted that Washington's work was great, and well done. As much was said of Lincoln's work. Each solved the problems of his day and earned the lasting gratitude of his countrymen.

But we are reminded that Washington's work was done more than a hundred years ago, and Lincoln's fifty years ago. New times, new problems. New problems, new men. Neither Washington or Lincoln had either the trust or conservation to consider. Both were protectionists, but the tariff problem of their day was not the tariff problem of this day.

All very true, but it fails to take into account the broad principles for which the two men stood, and upon which they acted. They found warrant in the constitution for all they did and all they did still further strengthened the Constitution. At the end of sixty years Washington was an inspiration to Lincoln, and why at the end of fifty years should not Lincoln be an inspiration to us?

Had Washington been in the White House in 1861, he would have found as Lincoln did, power enough in the Constitution to save the country from dismemberment. He would have proceeded quite as promptly as Mr. Lincoln did against secession, and being a trained soldier probably with a clearer idea of the military difficulties presented. The war, under his general direction of the Union cause, might have ended sooner than it did. Certain it is that he would have employed all the resources of the government to support and defend the Constitution.

If Lincoln were in the White House today he would be laying his course by the Constitution, as conscientiously as Taft has laid his. The men who are claiming him for a revolutionist and declaring that if alive he would support gradual departures from the old chart, give a strange reading of his record. In his day he met the temptations of a change, but resisted them. He remained a constitutional conservative to the end; and student of that great struggle today agree that by no other course could he have performed the services that have made his name immortal.—Washington Star.

OBJECT TO BEING BROUGHT INTO CASES

Several prominent members of the Jewish colony of this city, like strong exceptions to a story in a local paper, that inferred that the Jewish people had at a meeting organized to protect their people from the police.

Said one prominent merchant "my people have not organized to protect any of their number, or do they present against the methods used by the police in clearing up the junk robberies at the navy yard of late. If the junk dealers who are of our faith, have been purchasing junk stolen from the navy yard, they should be punished and the police have not used any means to my knowledge, which are not justifiable."

The activities of the local police in the junk cases has resulted in a general clearing up of the robberies of metal from the navy yard, and the work has the approval of the officers of the yard, who in the past two years have been at their wits end to prevent the wholesale stealing of valuable metal from the yard and ships. Officer Philbrick who was assigned to the work by Chief Hurley, has made a wonderful clearing up, and his work has been so effective that the junk dealers have been hard hit.

The suit instituted of late, will not have any effect on the program laid down for protecting the navy yard from the metal thieves.

NAT'S LEADING LADY DIVORCED

Baltimore, Md., March 3.—Mrs. Margaret Doughty, known to the stage as Marjorie Moreland, Nat Goodwin's leading lady, has been granted an absolute divorce from Charles N. Doughty on the ground of abandonment for more than three years. The divorce was applied for by her on Sept. 14 last.

Doughty made no attempt to oppose the application, neither appearing in court by counsel nor any witness being called in his behalf.

Mrs. Doughty did not testify in the case and was not in the city when it was heard. It is understood that she furnished the names of the witnesses.

The maiden name of the actress was Parrott. She married Doughty Jan. 28, 1901, and they lived together until May 15, 1904. The witnesses in the divorce suit were Herman L. Ruth, a New York lawyer and Mrs. Doughty's sisters. The latter's testimony showed that Doughty ill-treated his wife, did not support her and finally abandoned her.

Mrs. Doughty is still with Goodwin's company at Los Angeles, Cal. Her plans for the future were not known to her lawyer. There have been reports from time to time that she was engaged to the actor.

PRICE OF BREAD

In France Bakers and Mayors Fix What It Shall be

Americans like Englishmen are meat eaters. It is in Europe, particularly in France, that bread is the most important thing on the table. In the United States much of the bread consumed is home made, and the baker's loaf has a hard fight against the hundred and one prepared cereals.

Not so in France, where the bread famines of past generations are remembered and pain de manage or burgess occupies a leading place at every meal. The French demand abundant and cheap bread, and to that end have a law to which commerce and municipalities regulate the price by local ordinance.

The usual plan is for the bakers to fix the official price in conjunction with the mayor of a city for half-monthly periods, the cost of flour and labor and a profit for the bakers being taken into consideration.

Thus when the good wife goes to the baker shop to buy a loaf of bread, she knows how many pounds she will get for a certain number of centimes and there are no delusions or illusions about monstrous looking loaves when on slicing may be found, to explain a large number of airholes—guiltily lacking in nutrition.

The French loaf of the plain is of immense quality. The favorite with the mass of people costs about 3 1/2 cents a pound and is sold in loaves weighing as much as eleven or twelve pounds. The bakers' bread, used by a class of people known as the well to do, is sold for about 4 cents a pound.

There have been attempts in America to fix a pound price for bread but they have amounted to little. The 5 cent loaf used to be considered as weighing a pound but no one nowadays seems to expect that or care a great deal about it.—Bakers Weekly.

36 YEARS IN UNITED STATES MAY BE DEPORTED

New York, March 3.—Thomas Stevens, 74 years old, who says he has lived in San Francisco for 36 years is detained at Ellis Island until the immigration authorities communicate with his nephew and learn if the aged man's expenses across the continent will be defrayed.

Stevens was born in England and during his long residence in this country he neglected, he says to take out naturalization papers. He arrived today on the steamer Celtic from a trip to England where he was called by the illness and death of his brother.

er whom he had not seen since boyhood. The bulk of his brother's estate and most of the $300 he carried with him, he says he had spent in traveling and for a tomb over the body. He arrived here with less than $20 and because of his enfeebled condition and the danger that he would become a public charge, he was detained. If Joseph Stevens, the nephew in San Francisco whom Stevens says is well to do, fails to send the money for his railroad fare to San Francisco the aged man will be deported.
